EUROPEAN WAR ROARS TO NEW HIGH PITCH

Senate Confirmation of Stettinius Assured

SELECTION OF SUCCESSOR FOR HULL PRAISED

Disappointment Voiced
By Supporters Of
James F. Byrnes

FDR CHOICE QUALIFIED

New Secretary Of State
Familiar With All
Current Questions

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—Senate confirmation of Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., to be secretary of state succeeding the ailing Cordell Hull appeared assured today.

Despite frankly confessed disappointment of some members that War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes was not selected for the cabinet post, both Democratic and Republican leaders praised Stettinius.

The foreign relations committee will consider the nomination on Wednesday along with that of Maj. Gen. Patrick Hurley to be ambassador to China.

"There is no doubt of confirmation of Mr. Stettinius," said Sen. Tom Connally (D) Texas, committee chairman. "The new secretary of state is familiar with all current questions. He is a man of good ability and wide contacts among diplomats. He will prove a zealous advocate on international peace and security."

Appointment Praised

Sen. Vandenberg (R) Mich., likewise praised Stettinius saying that "it is a fine appointment," and added that "there will be no trouble about confirmation."

As undersecretary of state Stettinius has appeared before the foreign relations committee on several occasions. One senator said that Stettinius did an excellent job of "selling" the committee on the administration of lend-lease.

"I think it is a good appointment," said Sen. Guffey (D) Pa. "I have known him for years and was glad when he got into public life. He was a fine man in business and will make a fine secretary of state."

"Off-hand I think that the appointment will be satisfactory," said Sen. White of Maine, acting Republican leader.

"All I have heard about him is good," commented Sen. Ball (R) Minn.

"I think he will make a good secretary of state," added Sen. Capper (R) Kan., while Sen. McKellar (D) Tenn., said "he is a very fine man and ought to prove successful in the office."

Double Politics

Some Democrats said that years ago Stettinius, who formerly was chairman of United States Steel, might have been a Republican. In recent years he established his residence in Virginia and has been known as a Democrat.

A boom had already developed

Succeeds Hull

EDWARD R. Stettinius, Jr., Tuesday had been nominated by President Roosevelt to succeed Cordell Hull, 73, who was forced to resign as secretary of state because of ill health. Prompt confirmation of the appointment of the assistant secretary was predicted in the Senate.

JAPANESE LOSS FIGURES MOUNT

Nimitz Says 20 Vessels
Sunk, 87 Planes Downed
Instead Of 18 And 64

PEARL HARBOR, Nov. 28—An upward revision of shipping and aircraft losses suffered by the Japanese in the November 23 attack of the U. S. Third Fleet carrier planes around Luzon in the Philippines was announced today by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz at Pacific fleet headquarters.

Two additional ships were sunk, he said, bringing the total to 20, and 87 enemy planes were destroyed instead of 64. Probably 32 other planes were damaged.

Admiral Nimitz also disclosed that in addition to the 20 vessels sunk, 28 were damaged instead of the five originally announced.

Two luggers were added to the original tally of 18 ships sunk. Along with these, other vessels previously listed as sunk included one heavy cruiser, three destroyers, three landing boats, one destroyer escort and a number of cargo and coastal vessels and others.

Ships reported damaged on the revised list included two destroyers, 11 cargo ships, nine luggers, three landing craft and a number of other smaller merchanters and coastal craft.

SHE BUYS HOUSE OF HOLC AND CITY RAZES IT

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—New troubles descended on Mrs. Gladys Doherty, the Brooklyn woman who found that the house she had purchased from the HOLC had been torn down by the city.

Mrs. Doherty was advised that she not only lost the house, but owes the city $282—the cost of condemning and razing the three-story frame building.

And furthermore the city is thinking of placing a lien on the ground until the $282 is paid.

Mrs. Doherty's troubles started when she went to collect two months' rent due from the tenant only to find that her house had been torn down. The city housing department said the condemnation proceedings had been carried out according to law and that every effort had been made to notify Mrs. Doherty that her building had been condemned as unsafe.

BRITISH STAND MAY DEADLOCK AIR CONFERENCE

London Seeks To Keep Rich Air Business Out
Of American Hands

15 NATIONS BACK U. S.

Canada Seeks Compromise
Largely Along Lines
Of Yank Proposal

CHICAGO, Nov. 28—Great Britain, fighting doggedly to win economic guarantees for its own empire aviation industry following the war, stood virtually alone in the Allied and neutral world today as the international civil aviation conference moved into its fifth week.

At stake was the lucrative European air traffic business which the United Kingdom wants to keep out of the hands of American operators by restrictive provisions to be enforced by the proposed world air control body.

Observers were convinced, as debate resumed behind closed doors today, that only a reversal, or substantial concessions, by the British, could save the conference from a deadlock.

Already arrayed against the British were 15 small nations, openly backing the United States demand for "freedom of the air."

They were: Mexico, the Netherlands, Cuba, Sweden, Denmark, Venezuela, China, Philippine Islands, Ecuador, Panama, Nicaragua, Liberia, the Dominican Republic, Peru and Brazil.

Only France and Belgium had announced modified support of the United Kingdom stand.

Compromise Sought
Canada, led by hard-hitting H. J. Symington, head of the Trans-Canada Air Lines, was battling hard for a compromise plan modeled in considerable part along the lines of the American position.

Australia and New Zealand, still smarting under the conference's almost unanimous rebuff of their plan for a world aviation cartel, were pointedly non-committal, as was Greece, Britain's oldest ally.

Of the 19 Latin-American Republics, little Uruguay alone announced itself as "on the fence." In the final showdown, however, all of Latin-America was expected to be lined up strongly behind the United States.

The British-American dispute revolves around the right of an international air line operator to pick up and set down traffic in "third states," that is, nations which lie along his route between starting point and terminus.

Both countries agree operators should have this right, but the American position is that the traffic picked up at these intermediate stops should be figured in the formula used as a basis for awarding additional schedules.

The British vigorously oppose an operator being permitted to add any extra planes to his international flights just because he can show an increase in intermediate traffic.

PAUL J. HANG WOUNDED FOR SECOND TIME

Pvt. Paul J. Hang, former manager of Italy's store in Circleville, has been wounded for the second time in three months, his wife, Mrs. Betty Hang, 203 South Scioto street, has been informed.

A war department telegram received by Mrs. Hang, who is managing the store in her husband's absence, stated that Pvt. Hang had been wounded November 12 in Germany.

Pvt. Hang was wounded several weeks ago and had been back in action with his infantry division for a week and a half when he was wounded again.

JUDGE AT RENO RAPS CROMWELL

Divorce Action Against Doris Duke Scored As Extortion Move

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—A Reno judge, upholding Doris Duke Cromwell's Nevada divorce, declared today that her husband's New Jersey countersuit was filed "solely in order to extort money" from the tobacco heiress, the New York Journal-American revealed.

In a decision of more than 100 pages, Judge William McKnight, in Reno, not only upheld her divorce but ruled that James H. R. Cromwell, former minister to Canada, obtained the New Jersey ruling by means of fraud, false allegations and suppression of material facts, the paper said.

Cromwell obtained from New Jersey courts a ruling setting aside his former wife's Reno decree in the eastern state.

In his decision, Judge McKnight characterized Cromwell's New Jersey action as "unique in the annals of jurisprudence," noted that his suit had been "continued without date" and commented:

"It would be inexplicable except for the known ulterior purpose of the suit, that it was to get money, not a divorce."

The tobacco heiress' divorce had been declared null and void on the allegation of her husband that she was not a resident legally of Nevada.

CHEST TRUSTEES VOTE $300 TO CAMP COUNCIL

Community Chest Trustees in a meeting at the high school Monday night contributed $300 to the Camp and Hospital Council of which Mrs. James P. Moffitt is the local chairman. This organization provides facilities for soldiers in hospitals of this area.

Total figures of the campaign, which closed November 4, have reached $27,000. The goal for the campaign was $22,550, with an allotment this year of $16,330 to support the National War Fund.

Leading the contributions from organizations was the Eagles' Lodge with a donation of $200.

Ninety-three per cent of this year's contributions was cash.

HOLIDAY DECLARED BY PROTESTING POULTRYMEN

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 28—A business "holiday" was declared in force today by 75 members of the New Jersey Retail Live Poultry Dealers Association. The poultry dealers closed their shops because of the shortage of fowl and appealed to the public to buy no chickens or poultry until the price situation has been adjusted to the satisfaction of both dealers and consumers.

220 MAY HAVE DIED IN BLAST AT RAF DEPOT

LONDON, Nov. 28—More than 220 persons, according to an estimate of the London Daily Mail today, were killed in the mammoth explosion of the Royal Air Force maintenance depot near Burton-on-Trent yesterday.

Latest official figures said more than 50 persons were killed and that at least another 60 men were still trapped below ground.

British and American troops assisted in rescue efforts at the disaster scene.

The authoritative Press Association said meanwhile that the death toll was much smaller than at first feared, but it still appeared that more than 42 and possibly as many as 70 had been killed.

The Press Association listed 20 definitely known dead, 22 missing and believed killed and 29 others missing. Three other persons were known to have been injured.

MACKENZIE KING WARNS HE MAY RESIGN POST

OTTAWA, Nov. 28—The Canadian parliament was warned today by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King that he will resign the premiership unless he is given "sufficient support" from his own party when parliament ballots later this week on confidence in his regime.

Emphasizing that the issue of the forthcoming confidence vote is support of the government's war effort rather than the dominion-wide controversy over conscription alone, the premier told parliament:

"Unless there was a government that could carry on during the war, we would have to face the possibility of anarchy in Canada while our soldiers are fighting overseas to save democracy."

The prime minister said he was prepared to relinquish his office immediately to any minister in his administration who has the confidence of parliament and warned that a vote of non-confidence would require a bitter general election which would dislocate business and hamper Canada's war effort since, he said, opposition groups could not form an administration with a reasonable chance of carrying on.

Earlier King announced acceptance of the resignation of Air Minister C. G. Power, second cabinet member to step out in the conscription controversy. National Defense Minister J. L. Ralston resigned previously because the cabinet refused to accept his recommendation that drafted Canadians be sent overseas. Power resigned because of the cabinet's policy change on the draft issue.

SHOT KILLS CHILD

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 28—Five-year-old Shirley Jean Hobbs, of Columbus, was dead today of injuries suffered when a .22 caliber rifle held by her brother, Calvin, 12, accidentally discharged, striking her below the heart. Police reported the girl playfully grabbed the barrel of the gun while her brother was holding it.

BRITISH FORCES TOTAL 4,500,000

World War To Date Costs
Nation $100,000,000,000
White Paper Says

LONDON, Nov. 28—Great Britain, conscripting more than one-third of all men between 14 and 64 into the armed services, has raised a fighting force of 4,500,000 out of a 47,000,000 population an official white paper issued by the government revealed today.

An additional 500,000 women also are in the armed services, the paper disclosed in detailing statistics of the nation's five years at war, which have cost 100 billion dollars so far.

Almost half of Britain's women between the ages of 14 and 59 are serving in the armed forces, in full-time civil defense jobs or in vital industries, among the latter shipbuilding plants helping to replace the 11,500,000 gross tons lost up to the end of 1943. This represents two-thirds of the tonnage with which Britain began the war.

Information Minister Bracken told correspondents that Britain's total war effort was greater than that of any other belligerent. With the exception of Canada, from which Britain has received lend-lease aid, the home country has contracted to pay for every item taken from the empire—thus amassing a staggering debt.

During the same period, the official report disclosed, the British have built more than 100,000 warplanes, almost 6,000 naval vessels and 6,750,000 tons of merchant vessels.

In the first five years of the conflict the British suffered a total of more than 733,000 military and civilian casualties.

Of the 563,112 casualties in the armed forces through Sept. 3, 1944 176,081 were killed, 38,275 are missing, 193,788 wounded and 154,968 taken prisoner. A total of 29,629 British merchant seamen were killed during the same period and another 4173 captured and interned.

British civilian casualties through last Aug. 3 totaled 57,298 killed and 78,818 injured. The civilian dead include 23,757 women and 7,250 children.

LUPE DISCOVERS MAN ABLE TO CONTROL HER

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28—Lupe Velez, the peppery little Mexican star, has found a man who "is able to control me," and so she is going to marry him.

She spoke of the approaching nuptials as if it were basic logic for a woman to marry such a man.

The man is Harold Raymond, French actor. He will succeed Johnny Weissmuller, who, despite his brawn, was driven to the point of distraction by his inability to "control" Miss Velez.

Lausche And Bricker To Map Future

Governor, Governor-Elect
Slate Parley With Ohio
Post-War Board

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 28—Governor-elect Frank J. Lausche and Governor Bricker will talk over Ohio's reconversion program Dec. 6 with the Ohio Postwar Program Commission, Lieut. Gov. Paul H. Herbert, Commission chairman, announced today.

Herbert said that the outgoing and incoming chief executives had "agreed to sit down with the post-war planners and discuss what the state will do to promote prosperity when the war is over."

The commission, created by the last legislature, has sub-committees working on conservation reorganization, municipal problems, state institutions, postwar employment, libraries and cyclotronics (atom smashing). It will submit its proposals to the 96th General Assembly which convenes Jan. 1.

"We plan to have the committee chairman outline the recommendations they will make to the commission, both for the enlightenment of the commission and the governor-elect," Herbert said. "Mr. Lausche was very eager to participate in the conference and would have come to Columbus earlier had Governor Bricker been available."

ALLIED SHIP LOSS FOR WAR SET AT 5,758

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28—The number of Allied and neutral merchant ships lost from all causes from the start of the war in 1939 until the end of 1943 totaled 5,758, including 753 U. S. vessels, it was announced today by the British and American governments.

The War Shipping Administration disclosed that the American ships lost due to enemy action and marine casualty totaled 3,311,000 gross tons. The number of British ships lost was 2,921 with a gross tonnage of 11,643,000.

The largest number of American merchant vessels—422—were lost in 1942 when the Nazi submarine warfare was at its height. Britain lost 782 ships in 1941, fewer than the 892 the following year, but their tonnage was heavier.

The figures for 1943 showed the effect the Allied effort had on Nazi submarines, with American losses dropping to 234 and British to 361. America lost four vessels from September to December in 1939, thirty-two in 1940, sixty-one in 1941, some 422 in 1942 and 234 last year.

The British lost 158 ships in 1939; 728 in 1940; 892 in 1941; 782 in 1942 and 361 last year.

BLACK MARKET SUITS TOTAL FIVE MILLIONS

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—A total of nearly five million dollars in treble damages was demanded in suits filed today by the OPA against 37 New York meat concerns allegedly responsible for black market prices on corned beef and tongue in delicatessens throughout the country.

Regional OPA Director Daniel P. Woolley, pointing out that New York is the center of the delicatessen meat-processing industry, said some of the defendant companies had collected as much as 50 percent over wholesale ceiling prices.

ELECTION ECHO

CHICAGO, Nov. 28—Official figures showed today that President Roosevelt's plurality over Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in Illinois in the Nov. 7 election was 150,807. His Chicago plurality was 417,836. Gov. Dwight H. Green won re-election by 72,339 over his Democratic opponent, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney of Chicago.

WEEK'S BATTLES PROMISING TO BE DECISIVE

Berlin Trumpets Fears Of Concerted Drives To Knock Out Nazis

NINTH ARMY AT ROER

Third Plunges To Second
Point Along Frontier
British Ready

By International News Service
What promises to be the decisive week of the war in Europe roared into its second day today amidst a whirlpool of German nervousness engendered by the imminence of a general breakthrough by six Allied armies to the Rhine.

On every battlefield in Europe fighting rose to a new pitch of intensity and while Allied gains still were measured almost yard by yard, Berlin trumpeted its fears that supplies and reinforcements at last had been gathered in sufficient force to enable all American, British, French and Canadian armies to strike in coordinated blows designed to crush Nazi resistance in entirety.

Battlefront dispatches disclosed that the United States Ninth Army under command of Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson already has reached the Roer river, last natural barrier before the level plains of Cologne, while the First Army of Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges pushed deeper eastward out of Aachen.

The British Second Army in Holland, braced by Canadian units famed for their assault strength, was poised in Westphalia and the French press agency in Paris reported that French units spearheading out of Strasbourg already have crossed the Rhine.

Third Plunges Ahead
Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army, fighting forward another four miles, plunged to the German frontier at a second point near Villing.

Other Third Army units scored sizable advances as they pointed steel spearheads at Germany from the southwest.

Barring a highly unfavorable turn in the weather, the gigantic forces of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower at last appeared to be in formation for the greatest military assault in all history—a coordinated drive along a front of more than 400 miles that promises to carry the banners of Allied victory into the heart and core of Germany.

It is now more than amply clear that the German high command assembled the very best of everything it had to hold the Allies west of Dusseldorf, Cologne, Bonn, Metz and Strasbourg throughout the Winter.

Strongholds Fall
In the cases of Metz and Strasbourg, the Nazis failed completely. Those two great fortress cities collapsed days ago, leaving only the Rhine itself as a barrier to be overcome, and the rising momentum of Allied assault gave every indication that within a comparatively short time, the Roer will have been crossed and the German-Dutch border breached at Venlo.

From then on anything can happen, and probably will.

Gen. Eisenhower has never backed down on his statement that the war can be won before the year has ended nor has he retracted this spoken belief that Germany's best remaining armies had been as-

PEACE MOBILIZATION SEEN AS GREAT TASK

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—Mobilization for peace will be even more difficult than mobilization for war, Brig. Gen. William C. Rose of the War Manpower Commission warned today.

General Rose spoke before the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and said immediate action was needed to develop a "national pattern" for post-war employment. He added however that "until we have won the war, until the day of the final victory is here the challenge of the peace cannot be met, and let none of us think otherwise."

(Continued from Page One) assembled west of the Rhine. These troops now are bending their fullest efforts to keep Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., and his American Third Army out of Saarbrücken, and the First and Ninth Armies out of Cologne.

Berlin Fearful Berlin reports said that the new Allied offensives, under way or in the making, are backed by "overpowering aerial strength," indicating that the long-awaited spell of clear weather which will enable appropriate preparatory bombing and air support of advancing ground troops, now has arrived.

One particularly significant German broadcast said: "American troops have resumed their major operations in the entire Aachen area against German defense positions after bringing up fresh forces and in improved weather conditions which favor the use of massed fighter-bomber formations."

"The heaviest fighting centered in the areas of Aachen, where one enemy tank brigade succeeded in encircling one locality." Berlin dispatches to the newspapers Aftenbladet in Stockholm took a similar line regarding the British Second Army, reporting new Allied advances in the Venlo area and hazarding the guess that steady attacks by fighter-bombers indicated that preparations for a fresh offensive have been completed.

A squadron of Japanese aircraft attempted to put a crimp in superforce action against Tokyo by staging a raid on the new American base at Saipan in the Marianas and lost 13 planes in the process. On Leyte island in the Philippines, heavy rains brought a halt to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's operations.

Few changes were reported from the Russian or Italian fronts, where paralyzing winter weather slowed down all advances against the enemy.

Don't Be Too Certain Of An Early Victory, Kiwanians Warned

"Don't be too optimistic about the end of the war" Kiwanians were told Monday night at their regular meeting in Hanley's restaurant.

The speaker was L. M. Landis, former captain in the Army service and supply division in the Southwest Pacific. He was stationed in New Guinea and Australia and helped keep supplies moving to the various fronts in the Pacific.

Mr. Landis pointed to the vast distances to be overcome in predicting the Pacific war would not end soon. He said it took 30 days for a troop ship to go from San Francisco to New Guinea and supply ships even longer. And when they arrive there they are still a long way from the fighting fronts.

He said that tremendous quantities of supplies are lost before they get to the fronts. He told of the difficulties encountered in getting supplies ashore because of the lack of dock facilities on the islands.

The speaker gave some interesting sidelights on the government of Australia which is in charge of the labor party. He said the government controlled everything. Absenteeism of workers is great because of the high income taxes, he said.

He told of the remarkable job being done by American engineers and Seabees in constructing harbor facilities, building roads, filling swamps and gaining control of the mosquitoes which cause malaria. He said that when the United States gets through with the islands they would be "almost a fit place to live."

Mr. Landis was introduced by Harold Limbach, Tech. Sgt. Ted Moon, Circleville veteran of 32 missions over Europe, was introduced by Karl Johnson. He told of his experiences when he and the other members of the crew of the Flying Fortress on which he served was forced to "bail out" over southern England.

Dan McClain, chairman of the football banquet, announced the banquet would be held next Monday in the Methodist church. Speakers will be Leslie Horvath, Gordon Appleby and Jack Dugger from the championship Ohio State football team. Football pictures also will be shown. Circleville high school lettermen from the 1944 team and school officials will be guests of Kiwanis at the banquet.

Karl Johnson, chairman of the dance committee, announced the Mistletoe dance would be held December 27, in Memorial hall. President-elect A. W. Bosworth announced that officers of the club would attend a training school for officers in Columbus Sunday.

Stanley Williams, of near New Holland, was held in Pickaway county jail for investigation in connection with bad checks. Sheriff Charles Radcliff said Williams had passed several checks in Atlanta, New Holland, Williamsport and Circleville.

BRITISH STAND MAY DEADLOCK AIR CONFERENCE

London Seeks To Keep Rich Air Business Out Of American Hands

(Continued from Page One) ish delegation, and Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle, chief of the American delegation, made long speeches hailing their respective governments as true defenders of the air rights of the small nations.

Each said he could not change his stand further without jeopardizing the rights of the lesser powers. These statements drew from Symington, the Canadian leader, the reply that the small nations needed no plumed protector to speak for them.

Symington warned that the war-weary world expects more than an empty framework from the conference. He described the trend toward deadlock as an example of what the world is not fighting the war for.

Raised In Hillsboro

To Assure Enough Money In Fund To Meet Retirement Payments On Bond Issue

Special Dispatch to The Enquirer Hillsboro, Ohio, Nov. 8 — Hillsboro City Council today passed two ordinances connected directly with the village's water revenue bond issue, required to solve the shortage of water that has been felt here for the past 50 years.

The first ordinance approved by Council provided for the increase of city water rates, effective January 1, 1945. This proposal was deemed necessary by the bond firm that contracted for the city water revenue bonds to assure enough money in the water works fund to meet annual bond retirement obligations.

James E. McDermott, City Clerk, said that approximately $9,000 must be available each year to recall bonds issued against the proposed new water works project and that present rates do not provide a sufficient margin of income to assure the city and the bonding firm that yearly payments on the $185,000 issue premium and interest would be met.

Under the emergency measure, water rates in Hillsboro will be increased on a maximum basis as follows: First, 1,000 gallons, from $1.75 to $2; next 6,000 gallons, from 45 to 55 cents a thousand; next 30,000 gallons, from 25 to 30 cents a thousand; next 200,000 gallons, from 20 to 25 cents a thousand; next 200,000 gallons, from 12 to 15 cents a thousand, and exceeding 556,000 gallons, from 10 to 13 cents a thousand.

The second ordinance authorized the issuance of water revenue bonds in the amount of $185,000 at the rate of 2 1/2 percent interest a year.

Taken from the Cincinnati Enquirer of November 9, 1944

The Bond House is in the driver's seat in Hillsboro. The Bond House "deemed it necessary" that water rates be raised and they were raised. The issuance of more bonds was authorized. These things have happened in Hillsboro but they cannot happen in Circleville if you VOTE NO on the water works question December 5th.

Look at the rate comparison:

	Circleville	Hillsboro
Gross minimum charge per quarter	$1.90	$2.00
Gallons of water allowed for minimum	3,000 gals.	1,000 gals.
Rate for the next step used over the minimum	40c per 1,000 gals.	50c per 1,000 gals.

A Circleville minimum consumer, which means about half the water users in Circleville, gets THREE TIMES AS MUCH WATER FOR LESS MONEY. In other words if you use 3,000 gallons per quarter in Hillsboro your gross bill would be $3.00 but in Circleville your bill would be $1.90.

Do you want a $500,000 mortgage (or thereabout) in Circleville and lose the $4,500 TAXES the Company paid last year, and have a Bond House "deem it necessary" that your rates be increased?

IT CAN HAPPEN HERE Unless You

Buy bonds till it hurts!

Go without and do without if need be to help speed the pace of victory

THE young man in this picture obviously is an extreme example. Our Government certainly does not expect any of us to go that far in restricting our buying—even to put the 6th War Loan over the top.

But our fighting forces certainly will feel that their sacrifices are appreciated if we deny ourselves some things and put the money into extra War Bonds instead.

Remember, War Bonds pay off at maturity at the rate of $4 for every $3 invested. Try to buy at least one extra $100 Bond while this 6th War Loan Drive is on.

This advertisement prepared and contributed to the 6th War Loan Drive by THE STUDEBAKER CORPORATION

They can't come back till it's over, over there!

FOR THESE American fighting men, the war is far from ended.

For, although the Germans are on the run, these Jap-fighters must go on... sweating, fighting, bleeding... till the last Jap has had his belly full of war—and says so.

No... they can't come home till it's over Over There.

The one sure way of getting these American boys home sooner is to give them the same overwhelming amount of equipment which is crushing the Germans. The tanks... the planes... the shells... the ships... the stuff with which a war is won.

That's where you come in. The Sixth War Loan Drive is on this very moment. The War Bonds you buy during this Drive help pay for the equipment our men need—help get it to them.

Make sure you buy at least one extra $100 War Bond. Don't say you can't afford it.

For one thing is as certain as that day will follow night. These men won't ease up till it is all over.

Will you?

6 more reasons for buying at least an extra $100 War Bond in the 6th!

1. War Bonds are the best, the safest investment in the world!
2. War Bonds return you $4 for every $3 at maturity.
3. War Bonds are as convenient as cash—and increase in value to boot!
4. War Bonds mean education for your children, security for you, a nest egg to fall back on, come what may.
5. War Bonds help keep down the cost of living.
6. War Bonds will help win the Peace by increasing purchasing power after the war.

Your Country is still at war—ARE YOU?

AMMUNITION

THAT inspired slogan, "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition," has been a real factor in this war, and its magic is not ended, by any means. But there are some indications that it needs refreshing a little.

There has been actual danger lately, on some fronts, of running out of ammunition. Bombs, shells and bullets are used up in this war at a rate never before approached. The actual outpouring of ammunition is so vast as to be almost inconceivable. Yet the call comes for more and more and more.

This is not wastefulness. The unprecedented expenditure of war material is maintained in order to keep down the expenditure of men. The more bullets and bombs there are, the more metal there is always at hand to be thrown at the enemy, the more American fighting men will come back home in a reasonable state of preservation when the war ends.

NAZI PLANS

There are indications that the Nazis, now convinced that they are getting licked, are starting to sneak "underground." They do this, the reports say, not in acknowledgement of defeat, but in preparation for their next onslaught. Apparently they are determined never to give up, and every apparent defeat or surrender is to be but a temporary halt, with the march to be resumed in due time.

The Nazis are capable of making such plans, and possibly capable also of carrying them out. They seem to represent a new type of human being, determined on wrestling civilization to fit their own evil purposes, with a view to creating a world based on criminal principles almost beyond the comprehension of a normal, civilized mind. It seems almost to suggest a new and dreadful invasion from another world.

COST OF TWO WARS

THE war is costing a billion dollars every four days, according to President Roosevelt. That means over 90 billions a year. The first world war, which then seemed like the real thing, cost the United States only 32 billions.

The difference shows how much greater is the danger that the country has to fight today.

Washington Was Madhouse Back in Civil War Times | New Book Reveals Golden Side of Life in the Capital

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—You who complain today about "Washington the Madhouse," read this paragraph about Washington during the Civil War from a book of the day:

"The fields around Washington resounded with the words of command, the tramp of men and flashed with wheeling arms. Long trains of covered wagons filled up the open spaces in the suburbs. Pennsylvania avenue was red, white and blue with flags and thick with dust from galloping chargers and commissariat carts. The shops were filled with people, a large number of whom carried sword or bayonet."

The Gleam
And Flare
Of War
I understand that many a sword or bayonet is carried in the intriguing tongue and sly glance of today's capital. But as I told a young and about-to-be-disillusioned newcomer, "Pay no attention to the plotters and the rapier thrusts. If you are to survive in Washington, here's sound advice: 'Stay as glib as you are. . . Don't let a scheme ever change you.'"

NOW, ON THE SUBJECT OF Vera Bloom's book "There's No Place Like Washington," another suggestion: Here's a sweeping success! Here's a volume that will outsell all other books about Washington.

For not only is "There's No Place Like Washington" readable and entertaining, it gives a picture of Washington as people like to think Washington is. No hint here of ugly, intriguing Washington. No hint of disappointments. Nor snubbings. Nor cruelty.

But a Washington that is forever romantic and wise. Where every night in the week you sit beside an ambassador. A beautiful hand-picked ambassador, and eat exquisite food and drink rare vintages from priceless china and crystal to the accompaniment of sparkling

REPORT REVEALS SURPRISING FACTS

WASHINGTON—More inside facts in the tangled skein of Chinese politics leading to the recent shake-up of Chiang Kai-shek's cabinet and the ousting of General Stilwell from his Far East command can now be revealed.

A show-down with China as to whether she was really going to fight Japan has been in the cards for a long time. Last July, this column reported that many Chinese war lords around Chiang would rather fight Britain and the U. S. A. than Japan. Since then, a comprehensive report has reached the White House giving details regarding the whole Chinese picture and certain suspicious relationships between the Japanese and some of those around the Generalissimo.

For example, Wu Te-chen, Secretary General of the Kuomintang (a position similar to that of Bob Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic National Committee), still owns a large home on Avenue Hague in Shanghai, still collects rent for it through his own agent in the Jap-occupied areas, while his wife lives openly under the Japanese in Shanghai.

Also, the wife of Chu Chia-hua, Kuomintang Minister of Organization, has travelled freely between Jap-occupied China, apparently with the consent and co-operation of the Japs. Finally, her goings and comings attracted so much attention that she was asked not to return to Chungking any more.

Meanwhile, Madame Sun Yat-sen, widow of China's great liberator and first president, has been rebelling privately at some policies of Chiang Kai-shek, her brother-in-law. As a result, Madame Sun is kept out of contact with other Chinese in Chungking.

Where Madame Sun especially disagrees with the Generalissimo is in his failure to cooperate with the so-called "Communist" or "Agrarian" armies in the north. The White House report on China tells in detail about the steady resistance these northern peasant armies are putting up against the Japs compared with the wavering, sometimes non-existent fighting of Chiang's own war lords.

All of this came to a head when General Patrick J. Hurley (Hoover's ex-Secretary of War) and Donald Nelson asked Chiang to cooperate with the Communist armies under an over-all U. S. commander instead of fighting them. It was at this time that General Stilwell was ousted. Chiang, who had never liked Stilwell, made it clear that he would never accept an American over-all commander if Stilwell were in the picture. Since then, Chiang has cleaned up his cabinet and is more cooperative.

REPORT ON CHINESE COMMUNISTS

U. S. concern regarding the long-smouldering Chinese situation came to a head as a result of two developments:

1. It became apparent that the Japs could not be licked merely by island-to-island operations in the Pacific. This type of warfare might destroy even the Japanese main islands, but because the Japs have been moving their war industries to China, a major campaign on the Chinese mainland is going to be necessary.

2. The United States was able to send an official mission to visit the Chinese Communists or Agrarians for the first time in five years. This was arranged as a result of Vice President Wallace's trip. The mission's subsequent report, recently (Continued on Page Six) wit and international love and affection.

Miss Bloom, who is the daughter of Representative Sol Bloom of New York, chairman of the foreign relations committee of the House, has turned out a truly readable book.

I read it through without stopping in one evening and wasn't bored by a paragraph. Add this, from a reprobate-like female who tries to write about Washington herself, is praise indeed.

ONE OF THE PROBLEMS of dealing with the post-war Germans, Robert Murphy, civilian advisor to Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, suggests, is the danger of spreading Nazism in countries which might use Nazi workers to help build up the ravished countries. "It might be possible, too, for a big group of Nazi workers to play Russia, England and the United States one against the other, with very bad effects on international harmony," says Murphy.

"I used to live across the street from Hitler in Munich," said Murphy. "I was consul there between 1921 and 1925. Hitler lived with his friend, the American Hanfstaengl, and we often heard them at the piano and violin. Hitler played the piano. He seemed an unimportant person then. Just a small town official. Yet many of us consuls and vice consuls were aware of the growing strength of the National Socialist party and said so in our reports."

Murphy has a home in Washington where his wife and three pretty daughters, all of whom were born in Germany, now live. As he talked of his family I once again had the impression of a man whose affections and loyalties are rooted deep in straightforward American ideals.

He spoke further of Germany. Calmly. Appraisingly. Convincingly. He had lived there. Worked there. He was honest. Intelligent. It was obvious that he must have learned much about the people with whom we are going to have to deal.

I came away from the interview with Robert Murphy knowing that I'd rather trust the judgment of this American in regard to the Nazis than the judgment of a French refugee. No refugee, not even Pertinax, whose personality and talents I admire greatly, has the national objectivity to be an impartial adviser of the United States government in its post-war relations with Germany or any other country. We've got to find answers to this perilous confusion in the American brand of thinking.

Changes In Ideas About Tuberculosis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

THE IDEAS of the medical profession about tuberculosis have changed radically in many important respects during the last 40 years. In the articles which I intend to write this week and next to further the sale of the Christmas seals of the National Tuberculosis Association in their campaign against the disease, a campaign which I have pointed out in previous articles is well on its way to successful eradication of this enemy, I shall discuss three of these changed ideas, viz. (1) we now believe that tuberculosis is a condition of lifelong duration in most instances, acquired in childhood; (2) we now believe the X-ray is the most valuable agent in diagnosis; and (3) the treatment and rehabilitation of tuberculosis patients must be carried out by more active procedures than those formerly used.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Childhood Tuberculosis
To discuss the first of these today let us look at the problem of childhood tuberculosis. Tuberculosis is acquired in the vast majority of cases in childhood. If a person has lived to the age of 20 without having acquired tuberculosis the chances of his getting it are a fraction of one per cent, and then he has to live in an environment filled with it, such as being an attendant in a tuberculosis sanatorium.

The child acquires tuberculosis either from infected milk from tuberculous cattle, or from another person. The chances of acquiring it from milk, at least in this country have been reduced to a minimum. In over 90 per cent of cases the child acquires it from another member of its family whom nobody has ever suspected of having tuberculosis.

If there is one thing about which our opinions have not changed one iota in the field of tuberculosis it is that in the early stages and often until the very end it does not force itself on the victim's consciousness. There is no pain, often, indeed, he feels particularly well. All the significant signs are explained on some other basis—the cough is a winter cough or from sinusitis, the underweight is due to the nervous tension personality, "I come from thin ancestry," etc., etc. Such a person—the father or mother, older brother or aunt—sits around a family for years and no one even suspects the real condition.

Inspection of Child
In close contact with a child, the child early becomes infected. It is not a pleasant subject to speak or hear about, but it is the best argument for the case-finding campaign known.

Tuberculosis in a child is even more silent than in the average adult. It is an entirely different disease from what it turns into in adult life. It does not affect the lungs first, but the lymph nodes, especially in the neck and at the roots of the lungs. The child may be nervous, may fail to gain weight, may be a little off in color, may have a few kernels in the neck, may seem unduly tired in the evening, may have a cough with no sputum—but all these are vague and evasive signs. They are not to be taken away. If they ever took such a child's temperature it would be found to be elevated slightly every afternoon and that is one of the most valuable confirmatory tests that can be made.

All this is an argument for the regular examination of children by the family doctor or the family children's doctor. Because it is just at this stage and these ages that treatment is most effective and the whole subsequent tragic course of the disease can be prevented. It is seldom necessary even to remove the child from school. A daily rest period, or sometimes continuous rest for a few weeks, fresh air, plenty of good food, old fashioned cod liver oil are all valuable. But the most important thing is for the family to know what it is up against.

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

And Nugent came back into the room, shook his head to the anguished question in Craig's eyes and sent for Maud Chivery. When she came, looking horrible with great dark pockets around her eyes and her face the color of wax, he asked her about the decanter of brandy that stood habitually on Conrad's desk. For her fingerprints were on it and so were mine.

I explained my fingerprints quickly; I had touched that decanter. I was shocked, I started to take a drink of brandy, and then didn't. And Maud said in a tight, strained voice that was exactly what she'd done. "It was a shock to me; Conrad—dead like that. The brandy was on the tray and . . ."

"It was on the desk," I corrected. "No," said Maud, "it was on the tray. I stood right beside it. I would have noticed if it had been on the desk; that decanter drips and alcohol ruins the desk top; I bought the tray for it myself."

"How much brandy was in it when you touched it, Nurse Keate?"

"I'm not sure—not very much—the rim of the brandy came to not more than an inch from the bottom of the decanter."

Maud said, "You're quite wrong. Nurse. It was more than half full . . ."

Nugent remarked, "Perhaps you are both right. If poison were in the brandy . . ."

"Did you find poison in it?" I cried. "Did you find digitalis in it?"

"No. Not in the brandy that was in the bottle when we arrived that night. But we can find no other way by which Conrad Brent might have taken poison. He had a habit of drinking brandy at odd times; it's why he kept it constantly on his desk. Poisoned brandy may have been put in that decanter while he was out for his walk. In that case, he returned, drank it and died. Then in the time during which the room was empty the poisoned brandy was removed from the decanter (there's that little washroom on the other side of the panel); the poisoned brandy could have been poured down the drain and washed away with water from the faucet) and ordinary brandy put back in the decanter. It could have been done, like that. It's a good thing you didn't drink any, Miss Keate," he said a little drily.

I was thinking that myself, rather vehemently. He went on: "Conrad had to get the poison somehow. It's the only way that hasn't been eliminated—so far as I can discover. All that method needed was three things—the digitalis, a knowledge of the household and where to get more brandy, and opportunity to make the change after Conrad was dead." He looked at me gravely; I think he felt sorry for me.

Every few moments there would be a report from someone—somewhere—looking for Dr. Troopers mainly, tall and military-looking in their trim uniforms, snapped to attention, took their orders, snapped out again. But still there was no news.

And then Nugent went back to Maud. "Mrs. Chivery, I must ask you again: Why was your husband killed?"

"I tell you I don't know." And Craig leaned forward. "Maud—Claud said you quarreled. Lately. About money. What was it?"

She whirled on him. "I didn't murder Claud."

"Why did you quarrel?" She eyed him for a moment; then she told him. "It was an—investiment I wanted to make. He thought it unwise and refused to sell some bonds we owned together."

"What investment?"

"It's a secret, it has nothing to do with this." There was a silence—and again that look of concentration in Craig's eyes. And another trooper came in to say that the knife that killed Chivery came from the Brent kitchen; Bevens, he said, was willing to swear to it. But no one knew just when it disappeared.

Maud left and just after that, Bevens made his not inconsiderable contribution to the thing.

"It's about the vase, sir," he said to Nugent. "Or rather the noise—the sound of something falling, if you remember, the night Mr. Brent—died."

Craig got up on his elbow to listen.

"I think I know what it was, sir," went on Bevens and told his story. He'd felt all along, and Mr. Craig had agreed with him, that the sound had not been an accident.

"So I took a look around," continued the butler. "This morning I found it."

"Found what?"

"The vase, sir, broken in fifteen or twenty pieces, all of them gathered up and wrapped in brown paper and shoved into the bottom of one of the ash barrels. The ash barrels," said Bevens austerly, "are removed once a week by a truck from the village. There was also a large, thick twine—at least twenty feet long, and one end of it was tied around the lower part of the vase. The kind of twine that I keep in my pantry for tying up parcels; anybody could have taken it."

It was a large vase, at least three feet high, and heavy. Its rightful place was on a table in the second-floor corridor. Bevens hadn't missed it because the household had been so upset that he hadn't really taken a look around the upper hall as he usually did (regularly) just to be sure it was in order, but had left it entirely to the housemaid. And she had apparently assumed that he had removed the vase. But when he had missed it, he had looked for it with the result that he believed it had been placed at the top of, possibly, the back stairs.

"With the other end of the twine at the bottom of the stairs, perhaps," said Bevens, and stopped significantly.

Nugent's green eyes were narrow. Craig said, "You mean something placed there and hung the string down the stairway and then gave it a jerk at the right time from below."

"It would fall, I believe," nodded Bevens, "in a series of thuds upon the treads which would sound extremely loud at night. It broke, perhaps at the bottom of the service stairs—which accounts for the crash the nurse mentions and which I myself heard. However, the pieces of the vase must have been picked up at once and hidden." He looked a little bleak. "I don't know who could have done it."

Craig turned to Nugent. "Why? Why would anyone . . .?"

"To get Miss Drue Cable—or Miss Sarah Keate or both of them out of the library, of course." Nugent's green eyes were intent. "So whoever was waiting to dispose of the poisoned brandy could do so. But who picked up the pieces and hid them before we got here? There was nothing there when we looked, and whoever changed the brandy had to work fast. It's impossible for anybody to be in two places at once."

"Yes, sir," agreed Bevens respectfully and stubbornly. "You might look at the pieces of the vase for fingerprints, sir."

"Naturally," said Nugent. "The wrapping paper, too. Although I doubt . . . Where was the vase, as a rule?"

"On a table at the south end of the corridor, sir."

"South. Then anyone carrying it to the back stairs would have to pass this door. H'm—the back and front stairs are not far from each other; both in the middle part of the house. Well," Nugent looked at me. "You heard something bump against the door shortly before Drue Cable screamed. When, presumably, the murderer realized that there would have to be a sure-fire device to get her out of the library before anyone came in order to change the brandy. Was it the vase?"

"It could have been."

"But when you opened the door you saw no one?"

"I've told you that. There wasn't anyone."

"Did you go to the door immediately?"

"No. I was a little surprised. I waited for a few seconds and then went . . ."

"You waited long enough for whoever was there to have time to get away?"

"Yes, I suppose so."

Nugent sent for Nicky and Peter. The latter came first and, when he heard of the hypothesis of the broken vase, said he thought it very likely. I watched him closely, for I suspected everybody, but his boyish, blunt face looked merely perplexed.

"I didn't see anyone," he said. "I glanced down the back stairway, too, and all along the corridor in the back of the house. I thought a window had been broken, from the sound."

"Did you see any pieces of the vase?" asked Nugent.

"No. But I wasn't looking for that. I was looking for a person."

Hints on Etiquette
The husbands and wives of the members of a bridal party should be invited to the ceremony and reception no matter how small and informal the wedding is.

Today's Horoscope
A birthday today means that you are gentle, kind and loving, although sometimes domineering. You are an independent character, uncommunicative, and have a great deal of self-confidence in your own ability. You should marry early in life, as your love is strong and you need love and devotion in return. In the coming months, do not spoil your good fortune by erratic changes or careless conduct. Caution is advised when near fire and machinery. Novel businesses will prosper. The child who is born on this date will evince many fine qualities and characteristics. He or she will be fortunate and a general favorite.

One-Minute Test Answers

Grandpappy Jenkins' meerschaum back in style again.

Meanwhile, Zadok Dumkopf is putting the finishing touches to a pamphlet which he is sure will be a best seller. Its title: "How to Roll Your Own, in Ten Easy Lessons—by an Ex-Cowhand."

Napoleon's Crown Reported Missing From Paris—headline. Wonder which one of the Nazis took it home to Germany with him—just to try on for size?

German troops are using hand mines made of glass. Just another Axis trick our boys can see through.

That middle western householder who mistakenly used maple syrup instead of varnish to finish a living room floor certainly made a sweet job of it.

Maybe, adds Grandpappy Jenkins, the squirrels are just making their last year garments do for another season.

Girl Scout Troops Of County Report Activity

Publicity Board Is Advised of Schedules

Publicity committee of the Pickaway County Girl Scout association received Monday at a meeting in the Library Trustees' room, Memorial hall, interesting accounts of the Autumn activities of the various troops of the county. Mrs. Dwight Steele, committee chairman, conducted the session.

The Senior Service Scout Troop reported much activity for the last few weeks and plans that will keep the members busy until after the holidays. Some of the girls have continued their work as hospital aides by reporting for duty on Saturdays and Sundays at Berger hospital. November 1 this troop gave a handkerchief shower for Miss Helen Yarnell, former superintendent of Berger hospital, and Miss Davis and Miss Nott, former nurses at the hospital, who are now employed at the Greenfield hospital.

The troop also made clever Thanksgiving favors and presented them to Berger hospital and the Home and Hospital as had been an annual custom of the troop.

The scouts of Troop 4 are planning and practicing for the annual Christmas program.

Scouts of Troop 1 collected milkweed pods for Navy life jackets; collected playing cards to send to Union Station, U. S. O., Columbus. They are writing and presenting original plays; participating in choral speaking, and they also entertained at a Halloween party for Troops 1 and 2.

Troop 2 planned its own project and collected winter clothes for Russian children. They are planning to give a Russian party for the Christmas program, with parents invited. This will give the girls points towards their hostess badges. They are making Christmas presents for friends and are planning to make their own Christmas wrappings, using potato block prints. Troop members made yarn dolls for lapel pins; they are making holiday thank you cards of their own designs and are learning Christmas carols.

Troop 3 reported a wiener roast at the country club as an early Fall activity; a bicycle hike and cook-out on Ringgold pike, and also that they are working for badges for Second Class Rank.

Troop 6, Ashville, announces that its members are making toys for the Pickaway County Children's Home for Christmas.

The Brownie program was inaugurated to answer the youngsters' plea to have something to do. Mrs. Lawrence Goeller had the first Brownie pack in Circleville about 10 years ago. Home making is stressed in the Brownie pack just started under Mrs. Donald Henry and Miss Ruth Morris. The ability to work and play together under leadership may be called their aim. On November 28, the troop in a body will visit the city building. They will make their own Christmas cards and end this project with a Christmas party during the week of December 18.

The Brownie Troop has combined fun and service. The members have had a rain hike for which they carried a nose-bag lunch; enjoyed several picnics during the Summer; six members attended camp, and the members are now working on making stuffed sock toys, a project that is to be followed by the clothing of puppet dolls in international costume. The troop has 17 members and it, as well as the other troops, has outgrown the inadequate meeting place.

Soldier Honored

Corporal Harry L. Bowshier, of Scioto township, who has been home on furlough from 2nd Army Headquarters, Memphis, Tenn., was honored at a dinner party at Lord Lansdowne's Lounge Bar, Dayton. Amazing results shown in improving the Looks... boosting VITALITY!

1—Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach
2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

Improper diet, overwork, undue worries, colds, the flu or other illness often impairs the stomach's digestive functions and reduces the red-blood strength.
A person who is operating on only a 70 to 75% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped. At such times Nature needs extra help to restore its balance and function properly. Undigested food places a tax on the system...insufficient blood strength is a detriment to good health.
If you are subject to poor digestion or suspect deficient red-blood as the cause of your trouble, yet have no organic complication or focal infection, SSS Tonic may be just what you need! SSS Tonic is especially designed (1) to promote the flow of VITAL DIGESTIVE JUICES in the stomach and (2) to build-up BLOOD STRENGTH when deficient. These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat...to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality...pep...become animated...more attractive!

Build Sturdy Health and Help America Win
Thousands of thousands of users have testified to the benefits SSS Tonic has brought to them and scientific research shows that it gets results—that's why so many say "SSS Tonic builds sturdy health—makes you feel like yourself again." At drug stores in 10 and 20 oz. sizes. S.S.S. Co.

HEATING YOUR KITCHEN WITH A GAS RANGE WASTES FUEL

When it's so handy, it is a temptation not to use the gas range to take the chill off the kitchen these frosty mornings, isn't it? Yet, everytime you do it, you waste fuel. Your gas range was designed for cooking and neither top burners nor open oven will do an efficient heating job. Why not give attention to your regular heating plant a few minutes earlier so that the kitchen will be comfortable when you are ready to use it? This practice not only saves you money but, also, makes more gas available to war plants at a time when the supply of all fuels is critical.

THE OHIO FUEL Gas Company

Insulating jackets for water heaters save gas, save money and improve the hot water supply.

Dust-clogged filters in your heating system retard heat from reaching the living quarters. Clean or renew filters to save fuel.

Seal off unused rooms so that heat needed in occupied portions of your home does not escape.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

reaching the President's desk, convinced him that somehow or other the two divergent factions inside China must be coordinated.

Here are some of the highlights of the American mission's report:

1. The best-equipped armies of Chiang Kai-shek's Kuomintang are used, not to fight the Japs, but to fight the guerrilla Communists. Some of their equipment was sent to China on lend-lease. This is one reason why we haven't sent more.

The Eighth Route Army of the Communist guerrillas is more efficient, better disciplined, has better military strategists in command than Chiang Kai-shek's forces.

3. The Communists have excellent military intelligence, know more than any other Allied army about what is going on inside Japan.

3. The economic situation of the guerrillas is better than that of the Chungking forces. Both are pretty much cut off from the outside world, though Chungking has been receiving a trickle of supplies from the U. S. A. by plane.

HOW GUERRILLAS OPERATE
The American mission's report to the White House is a very human document. It tells a vivid story of the lengths to which free people will go to fight an aggressor. With no ammunition to speak of—perhaps averaging 20 rounds to a man—Chinese guerrillas will attack a much stronger Jap force in order to take away their supplies.

One of their most effective weapons is home-made dynamite, manufactured from saltpetre, and sometimes mixed with odds and ends of metal to make grenades. Dynamite has been too precious to use in blowing up railroads, so the guerrillas rip up railroad ties and rails by hand. To thwart them, the Japs now rivet their rails together.

So many telegraph poles have been saved off by the Communists that the Japs now have to go to the trouble of making concrete poles.

The American mission also reported that the Communist armies had never heard of a sulfa pill, never known what a blood bank was. When their men are wounded, they usually die.

The Chinese Agrarian leaders made no demands on the American mission, impressed U. S. officials with their independence and pride. When asked what the United States could send to help them, their requests were simple. First on the list were radio-receiving and receiving sets. They also wanted some modern high-powered dynamite, some easily carried bazooka guns, some trench mortars and medical supplies.

One thing emphasized in the White House report was that the energetic operations of the guerrillas make it impossible for the Japs to control the cities they capture. For as soon as the Japs capture a city, the guerrillas move in behind and make occupation a nightmare.

The situation in China is similar to that which the United States found in Tito and General Mikhailovich in Yugoslavia. Only, instead of siding with one faction or the other, President Roosevelt is doing his best to get the two Chinese groups to work together.

BAKSI IN K. O.
PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 28.—Another knockout was added today to the long list achieved by Joe Baksi, 217-pound heavyweight from Kumpmont, Pa. Baksi's latest victim, in a 10-round bout last night at Duquesne garden, was Cpl. Buddy Knox, 213-pounder from Fort Dix, N. J., who went down after 39 seconds of the fourth round.

Hackett To Lead Bucks In 1945; Flanagan Is Outstanding Freshman

COLUMBUS, Nov. 28.—Ohio State university consigned its most successful football season in 28 years to the record books today as All-American Guard Candidate Bill Hackett was named to lead the 1945 Bucks and Freshman Dick Flanagan, of Sidney, was selected as the outstanding first year man on the 1944 Western Conference championship squad.

Announcement of Hackett's election as captain of the 1945 Buckeye eleven climaxed the annual campus appreciation banquet which attracted 1200 fans to the university gymnasium. More than 300 well-wishers were denied admission to the gym because of limited seating facilities.

Hackett's election was little surprise. A sophomore in the college of veterinary medicine, he has been one of the outstanding performers in a great Buck line all season. He was a regular in 1943 as well as the recently-ended season. In 1942 he understudied All-American Lynn Houston. Hackett is eligible for his fourth season of varsity competition under the relaxed, wartime Western Conference rules.

Likewise, Flanagan was a logical choice to win recognition as the outstanding first year man in the Downtown Quarterback's club.

Chicago—J. E. (Ned) Grimes, a consulting engineer, and others; Baltimore—A. H. Ehlers, president of the Interstate Baseball league; Philadelphia—J. J. Ahrin, business man; Washington—Lt. Harry L. Harris insurance man now in the Coast Guard; New York—W. S. Palmer, contractor; Honolulu—Ralph W. Olson, business man, Dr. Samuel L. Yee, Chinese surgeon, and F. J. Bricker, former St. Mary's Cal., football player; Akron, O.—Charles Burns, representative of the Akron Rubber Bowl and 50 stockholders. Howard Parsons of Erie, Pa., secretary of the league, said Boston also had been granted a franchise and that the club's owners would be announced later.

FLANAGAN HACKETT

selection. He is the fourth Buck to receive the coveted award. Flanagan started all nine games at left halfback and, aside from Les Horvath, saw more action than any other Scarlet ball carrier. He played a total of 350 1/2 minutes of a possible 540. Horvath played 401 1/2 minutes. Captain-Elect Hackett saw 372 minutes of action and retiring captain, Gordon Appleby, played 267.

Coach Carroll C. Widdees, a popular candidate for nomination as the coach of the year, praised every one of the Bucks individually and gave a lot of the credit for the success of the 1944 team to his assistant coaches, particularly Paul Bixler and the veteran Ernie Godfrey.

"I don't care what kind of a coaching staff you have, if you don't have the right kind of boys, they'll never come through. This is the finest group of boys I've ever had the privilege of working with."

In all, there were 37 letter winners and to each, in addition to the varsity "O", will go a miniature gold football emblematic of the Bucks' western Conference triumph. The letter winners included four seniors—Capt. Appleby, of Massillon; Jack Dugger, of Canton; Horvath, of Parma; and Big Bill Willis, of Columbus.

Others were: Hackett, of London; Flanagan, of Sidney; Warren Amling, of Pana, Ill.; Kenny Boxwell, of Xenia; Matt Brown, of Canton; Bob Brugge, of Parma; Ollie Cline, of Fredericktown; Ernie Cottrell, of Curtice; Triah Dendiu, of Campbell; Ray Di Piero, of Toledo; Bob Dove of Ashland; John Ersham, of Toledo; George Gordon, of Maumee; M. N. Hamilton, of Toledo; Kendall Herron, of Willoughby; Richard Jackson, of Wellsville; Gene Jannecko, of Campbell; Tom Keane, of Bellaire.

Paul Maltinsky, of Wheeling, W. Va.; Joe Mascio, of Ravenna; John Motejzlik, of Parma; Norman McElheny, of Tiffin; Robert McGinnis, of Wyoming; George Neff, of Bellaire; Jack Redd, of Columbus; Charles Renner, of Akron; Tom Snyder, of Upper Sandusky; Tony Stranges, of St. Clairsville; Russell Thomas, of Huntington, W. Va.; George Tonneff, of Barberton; Robert Wallace, of Massillon; Richard Wandke, of Toledo.

In addition a letter and gold football was awarded to Cecil Souders, of Bucyrus, who played right end for the Bucks through the early half of the season. Souders, a star in 1942, is now playing at Great Lakes for Former Buck Coach Paul Brown.

HAL NEWHOUSER IS AMERICAN'S MOST VALUABLE

'Dizzy' Trout Second In Voting By Baseball Writers' Group

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Hal Newhouser, Detroit's great left hander, has been selected as the most valuable player in the American League by the Baseball Writers' Association of America, who previously had named Martin Marion, St. Louis Cardinals' shortstop, as the top man in the National League.

The voting was conducted on the bases of 14 points for first place, nine for second place and so on down the line to one vote for 10th place. On this basis, Newhouser received 236 votes from 7 firsts, 10 seconds and 6 thirds.

Paul Dizzy Trout, the Tigers' fine right hander, finished second with 232 votes. He received 10 first place votes, but his other votes were scattered down as far as sixth place.

Vernon Stephens, shortstop of the pennant-winning Browns, was third with 193 votes and George Stinewisse, the Yanks' base-stealing champion, fourth with 129.

Dick Wakefield, the Tigers' slugging outfielder, who sparked their sensational late season rise, was a bang-up fifth with 128 votes. Then in order to round out the first ten came Lou Boudreau, Cleveland, 84 points; Bobby Doerr, Boston, 75; Stanley Spence, Washington, 56; Nelson Potter, St. Louis, 52; Bob Johnson, Boston, 51 points.

Thirty-four players got at least one point in the voting and among the 35, Spence, hard-hitting Senator outfielder, was the only selection from the Washington team. Of the 34, Detroit and St. Louis had eight apiece, New York 6, Boston 4, Philadelphia 3, Cleveland and Chicago two each and Washington one.

Leading the second 10 was Mark Christman of the Browns, followed by Cecil Hughes, Boston; Roger Cramer, Detroit; Hayes, Philadelphia; Ervin Fox, Boston; Jack Kramer, St. Louis; Johnny Lindell, New York; Paul Richards, Detroit; Don Guttridge, St. Louis, and Pinky Higgins, Detroit.

It is a little surprising to find George McQuinn of the Browns ranked no better than 21st with only seven points due to a single fourth place vote. Two other first basemen also stood surprisingly far down the list. These were Nick Eiten of the Yanks and Rudy York of the Tigers who ranked only 24th and 25th.

chairman of the New York Finance Committee of the Treasury Department. The program will originate in New York, marking the conclusion of Dunninger's cross-country personal appearance tour.

TRADE FORUM TOPIC
Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce; Louis Fischer, author and foreign correspondent; and John Lee Coulter, consulting economist for the American Tariff League, will be three of the four speakers, when "America's Town Meeting of the Air" takes up the question, "Is a Large-Scale Expansion of Our Foreign Trade Necessary to Our Prosperity?" in the broadcast Thursday.

SLICKERS TO VISIT BING
Bing Crosby's musical colleagues will be Spike Jones and his City Slickers Thursday. Bing will be joined by his new singing partner, Eugenia Baird, the Charlotiers, and John Scott Trotter's orchestra.

RADIO NEWS NOTES
Bob Burns' "Suitcase Six," novelty band which he used on a recent program and plans to bring back for other appearances, really use a suitcase as one of their "musical" instruments. The rhythm is beat out on the bag in lieu of drums.

Hedda Hopper has adopted as the tagline on her program one of the "naturals" of the year. It's the heart-warming "Put a Bond in the Bank for a Yank for Christmas," and she'll plug it weekly on "Hedda Hopper's Hollywood" until the holidays are over.

Gloria Blondell, who is constantly traveling as the crime-chaser secretary on "Hollywood Mystery Time" each Sunday, has been traveling in show business since she was eight years old, with her mother, dad, brother and sister Joan, who is now famed in films. Their vaudeville act took them twice around the world.

Conrad Binyon, who plays "Junior" on "The Life of Riley," is using all earnings from the show to buy a fruit ranch near Hollywood, to which he and his parents will move at the end of the war.

What do America's youngsters like most on the air during the network evening hours? The latest survey (Hooper) shows that it is a tossup between "The Lone Ranger" and "Blondie." The latter series, with Penny Singleton and Arthur Lake as stars, has been the surprise of the season with a rating that continues to soar.

VETERAN OF 32 BOMBING RAIDS RETURNS HOME

Sgt. Ted Moon Served In Europe In Same Unit
As Clark Gable

The B-17 Flying Fortress is the most wonderful plane in the world in the opinion of Technical Sgt. Ted Moon, radio operator in the U. S. A. A. F., now home on a 22-day furlough.

Sgt. Moon is visiting his mother, Mrs. Edna Moon, West Main street, after 32 missions over occupied Europe. He was on the lead plane of the "Hell's Angels" group, the same unit in which Clark Gable served.

A veteran of several planes, the last in which he served was Princess Pat 11, which was christened by Princess Pat, younger daughter of the British king and queen, at the Hell's Angels second anniversary party.

Sgt. Moon served overseas for seven months, finishing his missions in that time. Members of his outfit were allowed credit for a mission and one half on some, making their finished count 32 missions instead of the usual 35. He will have been in service two years in February, 1945.

He had been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal with three oak clusters, the Presidential Unit Citation and the ETO ribbon with two battle stripes.

Sgt. Moon was the only one of his crew to be wounded during their overseas service. He suffered a slight wound in the leg during one mission and was hospitalized over night in England. He was treated in the same hospital in which Lt. Mary Beougher, daughter of Mrs. Claudia Butler, East Main street, is a nurse. They did not meet, however, during his brief stay. Sgt. Moon stated that it is unusual for an entire crew to come home as his outfit did.

While he was visiting London, Sgt. Moon and some of the other members of his crew were in a church when a robot bomb struck in the same block. He and the others assisted in removing the wounded from the wrecked buildings. He described the buzz bombs as "terrible weapons" and described the sound they make as similar to the rumble of a large truck.

He said that the entire crew of which he was a member had "bailed out" on the coast of England on their way back after one mission over the continent.

At the completion of his furlough, Sgt. Moon will report to

Do You Know the FACTS About the Water Issue?

DO YOU KNOW why the Water Company does not want to sell their plant? It is because of the large revenue they are receiving, and also they can command a better price for their stock as they are forced to reorganize under an S. E. C. order.

DO YOU KNOW that it is impossible to have your taxes increased because owning the Water plant? On the other hand, you can expect a reduction in taxes because profits and savings come back to the City.

DO YOU KNOW your water rate will not increase? It will take a depression seven times as severe as the last one before the City would have to increase the rate and then it would be less than under private ownership.

DO YOU KNOW that you will pay The Water Company $1,350,000 in the next thirty years for $350,000 worth of water? Your Million Dollars will go as profit to The Water Company and for taxes and expenses not required under City operation.

DO YOU KNOW that by maintaining the same rate you have, you can pay for the plant in fifteen years, or, issue thirty year bonds and pay for the plant and have $300,000 in the bank?

DO YOU KNOW that you are going to receive the same hard, heavily chlorinated water, low pressure, and poor fire protection for the next thirty years unless Council grants The Water Company a large rate increase? The Water Company wants rates increased one-third for soft water.

Chillicothe is doing all these things and showing a profit with the same rate they had under private ownership. Ask anyone in Chillicothe what they think of Municipal ownership.

DO YOU KNOW that soft water saves the average family $18.00 a year in soap?

DO YOU KNOW you do not have a low water rate? Your minimum rate only gives you 400 cubic feet of hard water as compared to four times that amount of soft water in Cities with municipally owned plants.

DO YOU KNOW Circleville is situated in the center of an unlimited underground water supply? Hillsboro's experience could not happen here, but if it did, you would get off a lot cheaper because of municipal ownership. Can you imagine a Water Company furnishing water at less than cost?

DO YOU KNOW that in 1942 and 1943 The Water Company charged $934.72 for travelling expense for officials; $960.00 for office rent; $1200.39 for legal expense; $393.49 for tax consultant; $651.26 for auditing service; $734.69 for corporate expenses; $13,392.05 for PLANT SUPERVISION. These items would all be eliminated under City ownership. Besides, you save $12,000 a year in taxes which 85% of the cities do not pay and I am deducting the amount the City would receive.

DO YOU KNOW The Water Company purposely withheld filing their petition until five days too late for the general election and then blamed Council for calling a special election at the cost of the City?

DO YOU KNOW that interest charges on the purchase of the plant are more than $100,000 less than in 1935? On the other hand, water plants have increased only 15% according to accepted engineering formula, thereby saving the City $50,000 by buying now.

DO YOU KNOW that last Spring The Water Company attempted to charge the City $926.00 for $55.00 worth of water for flushing the sewers and when threatened with suit by me for past overcharges they cancelled the entire bill.

DO YOU KNOW there are cities in the United States operating tax free because of the profit of municipal owned utilities. Is this possible under private ownership? Do not let the bird fly away.

DO YOU KNOW your water or water service has not been improved in the last thirty years? All you have for your money is a handful of paid water bills. Do not believe promises from The Water Company as they promised in their contract to sell to the City but have tried everything possible to block the sale. A future contract with them would be of no value.

DO YOU KNOW that The Water Company is prepared to spend a considerable sum of money to defeat this issue as they did in Washington Court House, while expenses for the City are borne personally by your Mayor and Councilmen. Do not let them down.

DO YOU KNOW that the project must be perfectly safe or Bond houses would not buy the bonds at such low rate of interest. They will not loan more than the property is worth. So do not worry about Council paying more than actual valuation.
